Import Regulations Singapore

GENERAL:

Singapore is a member of the WTO and applies the international agreements signed by that body. Ranked by WTO as the 16th largest trading nation in the world, Singapore's trade is 2.7 times its GDP.

Singapore has one of the freest economies in the world and most goods and services are allowed to be imported into the country duty free. The following broad categories of goods are exceptions:

- Intoxicating liquors
- Tobacco products
- Motor vehicles

Please click here for the list of dutiable items on import and the rate payable.

HAZARDOUS PRODUCTS:

Effective January 8, 2001, the processing of all import permit applications relating to hazardous chemicals has been automated via TradeNet to expedite the issuance of Import Permits/Cargo Clearance Permits (CCPs). Importers of potentially hazardous materials should note the Pollution Control Department (PCD) list of controlled items and follow the prescribed guidelines.

Please refer to the National Environment Agency (NEA)

Web site at <http://app.nea.gov.sg> for details.

PCD controls environmentally hazardous chemicals under the Environmental Pollution Control Act (EPCA) and regulations. These are materials that may pose a mass-disaster potential, are highly toxic and pollutive and/or generate toxic wastes that could only be disposed of with greater difficulty. Any person wishing to import, export or sell any hazardous substances controlled under the EPCA must obtain a hazardous substance licence valid for one or two years and costing $260 and $520 respectively. Any person wishing to purchase, store and/or use any hazardous substance must obtain a hazardous substance permit valid for one or two years and costing $63 and $126 respectively. Finally, any person wishing simply to transport any hazardous substance in quantities exceeding those specified in EPCA regulations must obtain a transport approval valid for one or two years and issued free of charge.

For any further clarification on the filing of applications, contact PCD by telephone at: +65 6731-9641 or by e-mail at:

nea_pcd_hs@nea.gov.sg

GOODS AND SERVICES TAX (GST):

All imports into Singapore are subject to Goods and Services Tax (GST) at 3% of their CIF (cost-insurance-freight) value plus duties, if payable.

- There are no duties or GST on exports from Singapore.

- Customs permits:

- Customs permits are required for the import of goods into Singapore. A company or its appointed local forwarder may apply for the customs permit via TradeNet.

TRADENET: Singapore Customs implemented

TradeNet in 1989 for the electronic submission of customs declarations for imports, exports and transshipments.

Through TradeNet, traders are able to communicate and operate electronically with Customs, other government agencies and local and overseas trading partners. The system is available 24 hours a day year round. A trader can apply for an import/export permit entirely from its own office and obtain approval in a matter of minutes. Today, 99% of customs permits are approved through TradeNet daily by the Singapore Customs Department.

AGRICULTURAL AND FOOD PRODUCTS:

The importation and sale of food products in Singapore is governed by the Sale of Food Act and the prescribed regulations. All food, beverages and edible agricultural products, including food ingredients, whether locally manufactured and imported to Singapore, are required to comply with the food standards and labelling requirements stipulated in the Food Regulations.

Singapore's Food Regulations are comparable to Western standards. The food laws are strictly enforced from the food health and safety point of view. As such, they should not represent any trade barrier to products that are safe and wholesome.

Licences are required by importers of meat and meat products, fish and fish products, fresh fruits and fresh vegetables to Singapore. Additionally, processed food and beverages must be registered with the authorities by importers before importation. Special import licences are required for certain items such as irradiated foods and certain artificial sweetening agents. A range of other foods, including genetically modified foods, are listed for special declaration to and attention by the authorities with respect to inspection, sampling and licensing.

The government departments and agencies involved in developing, promulgating and enforcing the Food Regulations include the Agri-Food and Veterinary Authority (AVA) and the Department of Nutrition of the Ministry of Health. The AVA is responsible for enforcing the laws relating to meat and meat products, fish and fish products and fresh fruits and vegetables, while the Department of Nutrition is actively involved in the development of laws and policies relating to food and beverages of all types. A Food Advisory Committee also exists which comprises experts from a range of different fields and has as a focus advancing the standards of food safety in Singapore.

If any food, beverage or ingredient falls outside the scope of the current food regulations, it is necessary to seek permission for import from the relevant authority before approval can be obtained from International Enterprise (IE) Singapore for import into Singapore.

For further information:

For more detailed information on Singapore import regulations, please visit the Singapore Customs Department (CED) web site <http://www.gov.sg/customs/>
